Date: 09.02.2022

Venue: Ravendrapadu Village

Pilot study on Buildings (Govt.), residential buildings, interior and exterior architecture

Description of the event:

Suggested construction practices they are following in constructing their homes, as civil engineering students took part in interacting with the people involved in construction, and observed the materials used. Also, suggested to them how to properly utilize the material during construction and conveyed how to dispose of the waste after construction.

Mainly highlighted on taking care of the surrounding environment through planting trees, water harvesting, and maintenance of water bodies.

During the interaction with villagers, many came up with their own remedies in properly disposing of drainage water and disposing of waste. As most of the drains are open drains, and water stagnation on roads, some drains is just connected to vacant lands this may lead to ground contamination if this is left unattended it results in the generation of disease-causing microbes.

Number of Students participated : 30

Suggested remedies:

- Rain water harvesting
- Soaking pits
